Set-Aside Alert news analysis:

Top 17 Small Business Federal Contracting Stories of 2017

Now that 2017 is over, we can all take a deep breath and acknowledge that it was a very disruptive year in Washington. Priorities shifted, tempers rose and fell, the air was filled with tweets, and previous rules and practices were erased or redrawn at record speeds.

Congress faces Jan. 19 deadline

Stopgap funding bill expires this month

Congress finished off 2017 by passing a stopgap spending bill to keep the government operating until Jan. 19. Now that deadline is nearing, while a host of other important legislative issues also need attention.

Among the unfinished business are negotiations on the proposed additional $81 billion for disaster aid.

Congress left for the holiday break without stabilizing funding for the Children's Health Insurance Program, without raising the nation's debt ceiling to manage rising debt, and without dealing with the upcoming deadlines for deporting hundreds of thousands of undocumented immigrants who arrived here as children, called dreamers.

Meanwhile, the fiscal 2018 spending bills are not done. GOP lawmakers want to raise defense spending dramatically, but to do so they also need to lift the caps set under the 2011 bipartisan budget deal.

With so many big stories, the little stories got short shrift. Small business federal contracting made but a few headlines in the major news outlets.

The Small Business Administration got a feisty new director who received little attention other than for her colorful former career as a wrestling entertainment producer.

The New Year has begun, and the news never ends. But before we look ahead, here is a look back at Set-Aside Alert's picks as the Top 17 Small Business Federal Contracting Stories of 2017.

#1 Ethics and Civil Rights

One of the greatest adjustments for small business federal contractors in 2017 was to adapt to an environment of sharply different ethics and attitudes emanating from the White House. The hottest controversies involving President Donald Trump have been about his ethics and his attitudes about civil rights, women's rights, freedom of speech, freedom of the press, truth and justice. Trump has displayed very dif-

Small biz goal appears met

Data.gov: 23.8% in FY2017

The latest federal data indicate that the Donald Trump Administration achieved 23.8% for small business procurement in fiscal 2017, exceeding the government's 23% goal.

It was a drop from last year's level of 24.4% under President Barack Obama.

It is the fifth year in a row that the ferent perspectives than his recent predecessors in these areas.

To name one example, Trump has refused to release his tax returns showing what businesses he owns, how much money he owes and to whom, and so on. The public needs such information to monitor whether an elected official is using his or her office for personal gain. Former presidents Barack Obama and George W. Bush, along with nearly all presidential candidates from the last several decades, have released their tax returns.

In addition to bringing a change of tone on ethics, the president has set a different tone on civil rights and freedoms. He has proposed actions that reflect his attitudes. For example, he has asked for deep cuts to the U.S. Equal Employment Opportunity Commission, federal civil rights enforcement offices, the Minority Business Development Corp. and the Office of Federal Contract Compliance Programs, which polices discrimination in federal contracting.

The ethics and attitudes on display in the highest office of government may be contributing to public perceptions of increased corruption. According to surveys by Transparency International, in November 2017, 44% of Americans said corruption is pervasive in the White House, compared to 36% who said the same in January 2016.

Just as a corporate CEO's ethics and attitudes tend to influence all levels, so Trump's attitudes may be having an impact in broad areas, including federal contracting: Is federal contracting still generally viewed as fair and nondiscriminatory? Do people believe favored contractors are more likely to get a pass than before? Are small business owners, especially minority and women owners, encouraged or discouraged about the ethics and equal rights protections in the current federal market? Set-Aside Alert will continue to explore these important questions in 2018.

#2 Federal Budget Shifts

The dramatic shifts in presidential and legislative priorities that occurred in 2017 are likely to have big effects on small business federal contractors in the next several years.

In 2017, the GOP majority in Congress, which previously had been highly critical of increasing the deficit, reversed itself and authorized up to a $1.5 trillion increase in the deficit to pay for tax reductions. With the deficit on the rise, there will be political pressure to reduce federal spending, including contract spending.

But GOP lawmakers also want to expand defense spending. Congress authorized a fiscal 2018 defense budget of $700 billion, which far exceeds the $549 billion caps mandated by the bipartisan Budget Control Act of 2011.

Lawmakers would need to legislate separately to overrule the caps in order to carry out the defense spending hike. If they succeed, there potentially would be more opportunities for small businesses in defense contracting.

The fiscal 2018 spending bills are not yet completed, and House GOP Majority Leader Paul Ryan has said the Republicans intend to pay for the additional military costs by cutting Medicare, Medicaid and Social Security. That would hit small business contractors in those programs.

Spending in other programs viewed as low priorities by the Trump Administration--including environmental, scientific and medical research, and international trade and diplomacy programs--also are likely to see reductions, which would negatively impact small business vendors in those areas.

#3 The NDAA

The National Defense Authorization Act for Fiscal 2018 had a large number of provisions affecting small business federal contractors. Here is a quick rundown of the major changes:

- HUBZone maps will remain the same until 2020, and then change every five years. There are new rules allowing governors to nominate zones, and a new requirement that decisions on HUBZone applications be made within 60 days.
- Under Section 805, the Simplified Acquisition Procedures threshold

21% fewer DOD vendors from 2011-2015

The number of prime vendors winning contracts at the Defense Dept. shrunk by 21% from 2011 to 2015, during the period of defense cuts and sequestration, according to a new report.

The study by the Center for Strategic and International Studies and the Aerospace Industries Association found that the number of prime contractors decreased from 78,500 to 61,700 during the period, a drop of 16,800.

Obligations to DOD's small vendors fell consistently, while those to medium-sized businesses initially rose, then fell, during the period.

The decreases were blamed on reductions in defense contract spending, especially in research and development. "The enactment of sequestration and budget caps marked a severe market shock," the study said. Read the study at <http://goo.gl/xu7ocw>.

goal was reached. The Obama administration exceeded the goal four years in a row.

The data are shown on the Data.gov Small Business Dashboard. The Small Business Administration has not yet certified the results for its annual procurement scorecard.

The figures still could change before the SBA issues the final report.

The value of small business procurement rose from $100.1 billion in fiscal 2016 to $105.3 billion in fiscal 2017.

Small and disadvantaged firms won 9.1% of total obligations, meeting the goal, and service-disabled veteran-owned small firms won 4.1%, meeting the goal. Goals were not met for women-owned or HUBZone firms.

DOD awards dropped

Minority- and women-owned fell 12% vs. 27% for all DOD awards

Defense Dept. obligations to minority-owned and women-owned contractors fell by 12% from fiscal 2010 to fiscal 2016, while total DOD contract spending fell by 27% during the period, according to a Government Accountability Office report.

In total, the minority- and women-owned firms--both small and not-small-- earned $230 billion in DOD contracts during the period.

Awards to such firms decreased from $36 billion in fiscal 2010 to $32 billion in fiscal 2016. Awards to minority owners fell from $23 billion to $20 billion; to women, $8 billion to $7.2 billion; and to minority women, $5.8 billion to $5.1 billion.

More than 80% were fixed-price contracts, GAO said, with 77% for services and 23% for products. The top product was IT software at $3 billion and the top service was engineering and technical support at $14 billion.

GSA sets 1/9 meeting on e-commerce

The General Services Administration is hosting a town-hall-style public meeting with industry on Jan. 9 to obtain input on the upcoming e-commerce Web portal for federal procurement.

In Section 846 of the National Defense Authorization Act for Fiscal 2018, Congress set a 90-day deadline for the government to create Phase One of an implementation plan for an e-commerce marketplace allowing federal agencies to buy products online. That deadline is March 18.

The meeting will be held at GSA's Central Office at 1800 F Street NW, Washington, DC, at 8:30 a.m. People can participate in person or online.

would be raised to $250,000, from $100,000. In Section 806, the micro-purchase threshold would be increased to $10,000, from $3,000.

Both the simplified acquisitions and the micro-purchases tend to favor small businesses.

- Section 1703 states that agencies would no longer receive credit for small business set-aside contracts in cases in which the small business was acquired--and would no longer be deemed small--after the contract was awarded;

- Section 1704 sets out certification requirements for the SBA's Business Opportunity Specialists.

- Section 1705 outlines certification requirements for the SBA's Commercial Market Representatives.

- Section 846 authorizes the development and implementation of one or more e-commerce platforms for commercial items that could be purchased by the Defense Dept. - the so-called "Amazon" provision.

- The DOD would set up a pilot program that would require contractors that protest DOD procurements to the Government Accountability Office to reimburse DOD's costs if the contractors lose the protest.

The program begins in 2020 and applies to contractors with revenues of $250 million or more.

- The SCORE program for advising small businesses did not get reauthorized,

- and a Senate provision to lower the employees-living-in-HUBZone requirement to 33% was dropped.

#4 Personnel Changes

New presidential administrations bring in a new group of appointees aligned with the president, and 2017 followed that pattern, up to a point.

The difference is that President Trump and several of his Cabinet members have been criticized for not filling vacant senior positions quickly enough, or not filling them at all.

By year's end, appointees have filled many positions that are key for small business federal contracting, including Emily Murphy as administrator of the General Services Administration; Linda McMahon as administrator of the SBA; Althea Coetzee Leslie as deputy administrator of the SBA; and Robb Wong as SBA's associate administrator for government contracting and business development.

Key appointees included Emily Murphy as administrator of the General Services Administration; Linda McMahon as administrator of the SBA; Althea Coetzee Leslie as deputy administrator of the SBA; and Robb Wong as SBA's associate administrator for government contracting and business development.

Jackie Robinson-Burnette, a long-time career executive at the SBA who managed the 8(a) portfolio, among other duties, recently left the SBA for a job at a Maryland bank.

#5 Disasters hit hard

Hurricanes Harvey, Irma and Marie blasted through Texas, Florida and Puerto Rico, and wildfires have ravaged California, causing tens of billions of dollars in destruction. Federal relief and recovery efforts have totaled more than $50 billion to date in 2017, with a number of contracts awarded to small business contractors. It is not clear whether a full tally of the small business share will be available. Another relief package is in the works.

#6 2016 Small Business Goal Met

In mid-2017 it was announced by the SBA that former President Obama's administration exceeded the 23% statutory goal for small business procurement for the fourth year in a row, for fiscal 2016. The total value of small business federal contracts rose to $100 billion, up from $91 billion.

Small vendors won 24.34% of eligible contracts, down from a high of 25.75% the year before. The SBA for the first time included overseas contracts in the pool of eligible contracts, increasing the pool to $411 billion, from $352 billion the year before. As the pool expanded, the percentage going to small businesses was expected to shrink.

In addition, it was the fifth year in a row that federal agencies reached the 3% goal for contracting with small firms owned by service-disabled veterans. The 5% goal for small and disadvantaged businesses also was met. Goals for HUBZone and women-owned small firms were not met.

#7 All Small Mentor-Protege

The SBA's new All Small Mentor-Protege Program got off to a fast start when it launched in October 2016, and it never slowed down. The program allows small businesses to partner with larger mentor companies to win small business set-asides.

The program is open to all small businesses. As of Dec. 1, 2017 the SBA had approved 362 agreements between mentors and proteges under the program.

#9 Big set-aside contracts awarded

The most talked-about federal small business contract of 2017 was the $300 million awarded by a Puerto Rican power authority to tiny Whitefish Holdings in Montana. It was canceled after an uproar.

Other large contracts awarded to small firms included:

- GSA named the 80 small businesses that have won spots on the $15 billion Alliant 2 Small Business contract for IT and professional services;

- GSA awarded positions on the Veterans Technology Services 2 (VETS 2) governmentwide acquisition vehicle to 70 firms. The contract was set aside for service-disabled veteran-owned small businesses (SDVOSBs).

- GSA added 502 new 8(a) companies to the STARS II governmentwide acquisition contract for computer-related services. The contract is set aside for 8(a) Business Development Program participants.

Business Committee.

The year before, the Republican majority in the House spearheaded the drive to raise the goal to 25% in its version of the National Defense Authorization Act of Fiscal 2013, but it was not in the Senate version.

2017 inaction

In 2017, when GOP President Donald Trump took office and Republicans dominated the House and Senate, there appeared to be an opportunity for the GOP to achieve its aim of raising the goal. But nothing happened.

In May 2017, Democratic Rep. Suzanne Bonamici of Oregon submitted legislation to raise the goal to 25% to the House Small Business Committee, but the committee took no action. The bill, HR 2362, has three Democratic cosponsors.

Partisan disagreements

Partisan squabbling over the goal has been a factor in interpreting goal achievement in recent years.

President Obama's administration achieved the 23% goal for small business procurement for four years in a row, starting in fiscal 2014. At the time, Rep. Steve Chabot, R-OH, chair of the House Small Business Committee, responded by suggesting the SBA was "robbing small businesses" by dramatically inflating the numbers. Chabot objected to SBA's accounting methods.

Studies by Set-Aside Alert have shown that inflation is possible in goal achievement, primarily due to the legal ability of companies to remain as "small" for a time after being purchased by large firms. The 2018 NDAA attempts to address that (see story on page 1).

The small business goal may be prone to being manipulated by partisans on both sides. When a Democratic president was in office, GOP leaders continuously drew attention to the goal. Now that a GOP president is office, Democrats appear to be taking over the effort.

Will Chabot support efforts to increase the goal in 2018? His office did not respond to a request by press time.

DOJ cracks down on SDVOSB figurehead firm

A disabled Army veteran has been indicted for allegedly defrauding the government of $40 million by serving as a figurehead of a firm to win an SDVOSB set-aside contract.

Joseph David Dial Jr., 52, of Belton, MO, is charged with major program fraud and wire fraud. He is accused of winning a $40 million US Army Corps of Engineers contract by falsely representing that he controlled and managed day-to-day operations of United Medical Design Builders. He faces up to 40 years in prison for fraud and 80 years for wire fraud.

DHS HQ concerns

The Homeland Security Dept.'s plan to consolidate its offices at the former St. Elizabeth's Hospital site in Washington, DC is facing some major challenges, according to an exclusive report by Federal News Radio.

The project is "bleeding money, behind schedule and doing anything but bringing DHS components together," the news service said.

The need for more structural repairs have caused the project to fall behind schedule and pushed the move-in date from mid-2018 to early 2019.

Minimum wage hike

The Federal Contractor Minimum Wage increased to $10.35 per hour on Jan. 1, 2018, under President Obama's Executive Order 13658. The previous rate was $10.20 per hour.

In addition, employees who earn tips while performing work on covered federal contracts generally must be paid a minimum cash wage of $7.25 per hour, from $5.85 per hour last year.

The order applies to new construction and service contracts.

Task order protests

Congress raised the threshold for allowing the GAO to hear protests of Defense Department task orders to $25 million, up from $10 million.

The increase was confirmed in a recent GAO protest decision.

"It significantly varies from the threshold for orders under civilian IDIQs, which remains at $10 million," Steve Koprince, government contracts attorney, wrote in his blog (<http://goo.gl/m2q8yF>).

NLRB overturns rules

The National Labor Relations Board overruled several Obama-era policies. The board restricted the joint employer standard, and allowed employers to publish more restrictive policies in employee handbooks.

The changes came while the board had its first Republican majority in a decade, according to a blog post by PilieroMazza PLLC attorneys (<http://goo.gl/N2vHWH>).
